

A PRACTICAL LEADERSHIP WORKSHOP

LEADERSHIP BEYOND TECHNICAL SKILL

Building resilience, maintaining composure and communicating clearly.

Cairns, 2026

Being good at your job can get you promoted. It doesn't automatically prepare you to lead people when plans change, setbacks occur and the pressure builds.

Leadership Beyond Technical Skill is a practical workshop that helps leaders develop the personal and interpersonal skills their roles demand. Drawing on Rob Redenbach's experience in high-risk environments, storytelling and live performance, participants learn how to strengthen resilience, handle difficult interactions and build stronger working relationships.

Why it matters to the business

Technical expertise remains valuable after promotion, but a leader's effectiveness increasingly depends on how they provide direction, address problems and support others.

Unclear expectations can create rework. Avoided conversations allow problems to persist. Poorly managed frustration can undermine cooperation and consume time that should be spent moving the business forward.

This workshop addresses the everyday behaviours behind those problems, helping capable people succeed in roles where their actions affect the performance of a wider team.

"Rob's message delivered great focus on the importance of thinking differently and working smarter."

LG Electronics

SKILLS PARTICIPANTS CAN USE

What participants learn

01 Resilience

Resilience is a dividend that comes from making specific investments. Drawing on contemporary science and lived experience, Rob provides a proven four-step framework participants can use to build resilience.

02 Composure

Composure begins before pressure arrives. With his trademark blend of humour, experience and hard facts, Rob explains how and why our bodies respond to stress. Participants learn techniques to support clearer thinking and more effective action under pressure.

03 Communication

Communication requires far more than words alone. Eye contact, body language, pace, tone and clarity all influence how a message is received. Through storytelling and shared experience, participants learn how to make their ideas understood and build stronger working relationships.

Angoram, Papua New Guinea, 2026

EXPERIENCE BEHIND THE LEARNING

Practical learning, memorable delivery

Through real stories, shared laughter and proven techniques, Rob connects the learning to familiar workplace challenges: a colleague who fails to follow through, a postponed conversation or a disrupted plan that leaves the team looking for direction.

Participants apply the ideas to their own circumstances and leave with specific actions to take back to work.

About Rob Redenbach

Rob's background includes running a security company in Papua New Guinea, protecting aid workers in the Middle East and teaching defensive tactics to Nelson Mandela's bodyguard team in South Africa. He has also completed executive education at Harvard and performed stand-up comedy at the Edinburgh Fringe.

He holds a master's degree from the Australian Graduate School of Policing and has completed postgraduate studies in mediation and dispute resolution at Bond University.

Rob has presented at more than 1,000 corporate events in 23 countries, with clients including Commonwealth Bank, Toyota, LG Electronics, the Oregon Narcotics Enforcement Association and Griffith University.

Rob Redenbach

Who it is for

Newly promoted managers, technical specialists moving into leadership and established leaders seeking to improve their effectiveness under pressure. The workshop can stand alone or form part of a leadership-development programme.

"You could have heard a pin drop. Great message, entertaining, real."

NAB

Enquiries

Contact Rob directly or through your preferred speakers bureau to discuss a suitable workshop for your organisation.

www.redenbach.com